Meet astrophysicist from Vadodara on a quest to find point of beginning of universe

ADITIRAJA
VADODARA, AUGUST 24

A US-BASED astrophysicist with roots in Vadodara is on a quest to find the point of beginning of the Universe, the reason behind its expansion and what created “the first structure” or galaxies. What will aid his mission is Laser Interferometer Lunar Antenna (LILA) — a proposed next-generation gravitational-wave detector on the surface of the Moon.

Dr Karan Jani is a part of the team of Laser Interferometer Gravitational-Wave Observatory (LIGO), in Hanford and Livingston, that observed the gravitational-wave signal, recording the “chirp” from what were black holes of 150 crore years ago, on Sept 14, 2015. These were the “ripples in the four-dimensional space” or the Universe, as predicted by Albert Einstein over a century ago in 1915.

Jani, Director of Vanderbilt Lunar Labs Initiative and Professor of Physics and Astronomy, Electrical and Computer Engineering and Communication of Science & Technology, at Vanderbilt University, US, is exploring a partnership with the Indian Space Research Organisation (ISRO), Ahmedabad, to explore the possibility of sending a payload on India’s upcoming mission of Chandrayaan-5 to the moon, Jani says the moon is “naturally quieter than the Earth” and suited for gravitational-wave experiments.

Speaking to The Indian Express on his current visit to his hometown, Jani said, “Gravitational waves have a spectrum... some sounds we simply cannot hear on earth as it is humming from its own seismic activities. The moon offers a spiritual quietness and has a vacuum right on its surface... It serves as a perfect place to conduct astrophysics experiments as it does not have atmosphere, wind, seismic activity and, more importantly, humans to create noise...”

He further said, “Soft landing on the moon is also very hard to achieve with the weight of a lander but Chandrayaan has been able to do it now... ISRO is very unique because it has a very well-established model of indigenous lander-launchers put together. So, the cost of putting something on the moon is significantly lower (than other celestial bodies).”

Karan Jani is a part of the team of LIGO that recorded the “chirp” from what were black holes of 150 crore years ago, on Sept 14, 2015.

Dr Jani says we were finally very close to solving why the universe created the galaxies. “By structure, we mean galaxies... Black holes began the seeds of galaxies and are clearly the relics of something from early on... When galaxies collide, they make a particular humming sound, which we discovered in 2023... We still do not know why the Universe is the way it is. Why did it create galaxies? We have to hear what was happening when it was born... It feels we are finally very close to solving that; through the moon,” he adds.

“The next Chandrayaan-4 mission is very complex with more payloads on it... The rovers can travel much farther... We want to send a payload on the next Chandrayaan-5 mission, which will be a prototype for the LILA mission. We will be able to test certain technologies. The only one other (country) apart from the US and India that are doing lunar missions is Japan. Chandrayaan-5 will be a collaboration between India and Japan. We are countries with lunar ambitions...” says Jani. “There is a global race but nations with similar values for democratically-led science, who are also part of the Artemis accord, can come together to answer civilisational questions and have a framework for the countries to build together. Building projects on the moon is not for a lab. It is a project for humanity...”

Jani says that the first phase of the LILA project will be sending a payload to the moon, eventually aspiring to send a manned mission. “Imagine, two landers a few kilometers from each other and communicating with each other through a laser... LILA is an international consortium that I lead... each partner brings a very specific expertise. ISRO, right now, has this very unique understanding of landing complexity and the lander in itself... Several universities from the US and Europe, NASA centres, private space companies who have demonstrated landers on the moon... Our team brings decades of expertise in gravitational waves and have sent experiments to space, moon and even Mars,” he adds.

Stating that his journey as an astrophysicist began in the era of Dr APJ Abdul Kalam, Jani expresses hope that the thriving community of space enthusiasts in India will receive the needed push through the curriculum in the New Education Policy, Jani says, “Every space mission helps in increasing respect for science among the masses and creating excitement in younger audiences to pursue this path. Like the computer science education of the 1980s, space education is currently at the nascent stage in India but you have early career researchers, who are interested in the science of gravitational waves... Here is the opportunity to build on that momentum with the Chandrayaan...”

Jani is currently working on setting up a pilot programme, Space Shala, at his family-run Shreyas School in Vadodara to fuel the fascination of young minds for the cosmos.

ISRO Ahmedabad Director Dr Nilesh Desai told The Indian Express that a proposal put forth by Jani for the LILA project is under consideration. “We have gone through the proposal... ISRO is launching many Chandrayaan missions, with which this experiment can be carried out... The proposal is under consideration. Once cleared, we will sign the MoU and be able to begin the actual work on the proposed project.”

Desai said that as part of the National Space Day celebrations on Saturday, ISRO Ahmedabad conducted an outreach in seven states and union territories, including mobile exhibitions on wheels.

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
AHMEDABAD, AUGUST 24

THE NATIONAL Disaster Response Force (NDRF) rescued seven persons stuck in Juni Vaghadi village of Mehsana district and over 30 people working on a railway over-bridge were rescued by the Ahmedabad fire department from Bakrol as Gujarat received widespread heavy rainfall on Sunday.

As many as 213 of the total 251 talukas received rainfall on Sunday with Sankheda in Chhota Udepur recording the highest of 84 mm rainfall in four hours — 2 pm till 6 pm — followed by Dabhoi in Vadodara which received 70 mm rainfall.

Districts of central Gujarat, North and Saurashtra region including Chhota Udepur, Vadodara, Banaskantha, Sabarkantha, Surendranagar, Surat, Morbi and Rajkot recorded heavy rainfall. The India Meteorological Department (IMD) has issued an orange alert for several districts of the state till August 30.

Based on the information received from the State Emergency Operation Centre (SEOC), Gandhinagar, an NDRF team rescued seven people trapped in Juni Vaghadi village of Mehsana’s Vadnagar taluka as water level in Sabarmati River rose.

During 12 hours from 6 am to 6 pm, Danta in Banaskantha received 68 mm, Idar in Sabakantha 63 mm, Dhrangadhra in Surendranagar 59 mm, Umapada in Surat 59 mm, Maliya in Morbi 58 mm, Jamkandama in Rajkot 57 mm, Tankara 54 mm and Morbi 50 mm rainfall.

As per the weather department forecast issued on Sunday evening, owing to several systems including low pressure area over northeast Madhya Pradesh and neighbourhood associated with an upper air cyclonic circulation, monsoon trough that passes through Bikaner, Jaipur, Gwalior and Prayagraj along with a fresh low pressure area likely to form over northwest Bay of Bengal off Odisha-West Bengal coasts during the next 48 hours, the state is expected to witness heavy rainfall throughout the coming week.

The IMD issued an orange alert for several districts till August 30. For Monday, heavy to very heavy rainfall has been predicted for districts of Banaskantha, Mehsana, Sabarkantha, Aravalli, Dahod, Mahisagar and Chhota-Udepur, Surendranagar and Morbi. Districts of Banaskantha, Mehsana and Sabarkantha, Bhavnagar, Valsad, Kutch, Devbhoomi Dwarka, Dahod and Mahisagar are likely to receive heavy rainfall from August 26 to 30, the IMD said.
